ABSTRACT

This study aims to determine whether there is a role for IFRS adoption in moderating the relationship of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) and accounting conservatism. The population in this study are all mining sector companies listed on the Indonesia Stock Exchange (IDX) for the 2014-2018 observation period. 17 mining companies were sampled using a non-probability method with a purposive sampling technique. Hypothesis testing uses moderate regression analysis (MRA) with SPSS version 16.0. The results show that 1) Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) affects accounting conservatism, 2) IFRS adoption has no effect on accounting conservatism, 3) IFRS adoption cannot moderate the relationship between Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) and accounting conservatism.
